Subj: Tenure Procedures for 2015-16

Date: April 8, 2015

It is time to begin the process of recommending candidates for tenure from your department to the College. This memo provides the information you will need for this process. As you know, the College Tenure Committee and the Executive Dean’s office believe that one of the most important ways to assure IU’s continued research and teaching excellence is to uphold the highest standards in the granting of tenure. I urge that your evaluations be made with the thought of endorsing only candidates who are among the best of their peers at this or comparable major research universities.

The following statements with regard to evaluation of candidates for tenure decisions derive from recommendations by the College’s Policy Committee in conformity with relevant campus policies. All candidates will be evaluated with regard to their performance in the areas of research, teaching and service as stipulated in the Academic Guide section E. Tenure/Reappointment/Promotion/Salary maintained by the Vice Provost for Faculty and Academic Affairs. Based on recommendations of our Policy Committee, the College Tenure Committee and the Dean use the following clarification of the criteria in evaluating the relevant categories:

(1) If research or other creative work is the primary criterion for tenure (this is the default expectation for most units in the College), the candidate must have achieved, or clearly be developing, a position of leadership in a substantial field. This must be demonstrated by the evidence in external letters and internal reports, and by pertinent documentation in the dossier.

(2) If the primary criterion for tenure is teaching, the candidate’s teaching record should be comparable to that of the most effective teachers at this institution. Candidates must provide evidence of a significant educational impact beyond the individual classroom on their particular discipline, both inside and outside of Indiana University.

(3) Generally, we do not anticipate that candidates in the College will be put forward for tenure primarily on the basis of their service contributions.

(4) In exceptional cases, a candidate may present evidence for the award of tenure on a balanced case. In a balanced case, the candidate's overall contribution to the university must be shown to be comparable in excellence overall to that of a candidate with a single primary area. In research, this means evidence of significant contribution to a substantial field. In teaching, it means evidence of an important contribution to teaching inside this university and, where possible, outside of it. And in service, it means evidence of significant impact on the university or one's discipline.

(5) Regardless of a candidate’s area of primary strength, the dossier must demonstrate, at a minimum, effectiveness in both research and teaching.
(6) It is also expected that all candidates will make a positive contribution to the professional environments of their departments and will make a positive service contribution to the University.

(7) There should be strong indications in the dossier that the candidate will maintain and enhance the level of performance on which the awarding of tenure is to be based.

These College standards derive from campus guidelines. I call your attention to the Criteria for Faculty Tenure (Bloomington Campus, approved by Board of Trustees 5/6/94) in the Academic Guide:

“Differences of mission between schools and departments are such that the relative weight attached to teaching, research, and service frequently vary considerably. A candidate for tenure (or promotion) should normally excel in at least one of the three categories (teaching, research/creative activity, service) and be at least satisfactory in the others. In exceptional cases, a candidate may present evidence of balanced strengths that promise excellent overall performance or comparable benefit to the university. In all cases, the candidate’s total record should be assessed by comprehensive and rigorous peer review. The granting of tenure is not only a recognition of past achievement but a sign of confidence that the individual is capable of greater responsibilities and accomplishments. In addition, the sections of the Indiana University Academic Handbook on criteria for promotion labeled ‘Teaching’ and ‘Research and Creative Activities,’ apply also to the faculty member being considered for tenure. Consideration should also be given to the professional contribution made outside the faculty member’s own department or school, as well as to contributions made to the total intellectual climate of the University.”

Both the departmental recommendation and the personal recommendation of the chair should indicate the primary criterion for their evaluation of a candidate. The Tenure Committee may not choose a different primary criterion for a positive recommendation. Please note that the Criteria for Faculty Tenure refers to “balanced cases” as “exceptional cases” and not as a routine alternative for cases that otherwise do not meet criteria for tenure. Departments and candidates should be explicit about the grounds for tenure, and this should guide construction of the dossier. The selection of the primary area of excellence, or of a balanced case, should be reflected in the materials sent to the referees and the instructions for their review.

The College Policy Committee has also clarified the populations within which candidates for tenure are to be evaluated. Evaluations of research, creative activity, and teaching are to be made with respect to individuals who have recently received tenure or who will soon be considered for tenure at major research universities. For teaching, please review the College “Policy on the Evaluation of Pedagogical Practices” revised and adopted in 2006 http://college.indiana.edu/faculty/policy/collegepolicies/pedagogicalpractices.shtml

Revisions to IUB Tenure and Promotion Guidelines in 2013 included four areas that I bring to your attention.

Interdisciplinarity. Candidates for tenure and promotion are encouraged to pursue innovation wherever it seems promising, even at the edges of disciplinary boundaries or in between them. Reviewers at all levels should be open to the possibility that work “on the edges” or straddling two fields may eventually transform research agendas in fundamental ways not always easily recognized by the home unit. A candidate’s interdisciplinarity may require that home units adapt their expectations/criteria and procedures. For example, practices for assembling review committees and soliciting external referees may need to be altered in order to insure that all aspects of research/creative activity are assessed by properly knowledgeable judges.

New Scholarly Communications. Reviewers at all levels should consider that the best new research/creative activity may not necessarily appear in the traditional disciplinary top journals or in books published by the historically most prestigious publishing houses. Peer reviewed publications are given greater weight than those that are not. Candidates assume responsibility for providing evidence of the value of their publication outlets.
Impact on Diverse Communities. In assessing the impact of research/creative activity, reviewers should consider the variety of communities – inside the academy and beyond – which may be transformed in significant ways by a candidate’s work. The emergence of “public scholarship” expands the range of audiences to whom a scholar/artist may direct their research/creative activity, and sometimes the best of this work does not appear in narrowly-defined professional outlets. Candidates should describe how their research/creative activity targeted for non-academic audiences intersects with work targeted to a scholarly community. Public scholarship will not supplant expectations for publications targeted to peer professional communities, but it may supplement that work. Evidence for “public scholarship” includes panel/commission and other technical reports, policy white papers, and strategic plans for community/civic groups.

Collaborative Work. Candidates are expected to establish independent lines of research/creative activity. For that reason, it is vital to establish the autonomous role played by the candidate in collaborative publications and grant proposals. The candidate must describe his/her role in the research statement. The chair/dean must solicit letters from collaborators and co-authors, attesting to the autonomous contributions of the candidate.

All assistant professors who are granted tenure on the Bloomington Campus will automatically be promoted to associate rank and need not be considered for promotion separately. In rare circumstances, tenure and promotion to full rank may be considered in the same year, but will be handled sequentially at the College level, first by the College Tenure Committee, and followed (if recommendation is positive for tenure) by the College Promotion Committee. In such cases, promotion to full rank as well as evidence for tenure must be addressed in external referee letters and in departmental reports. Votes in the department must be taken separately: one vote among tenured faculty for the tenure decision, and one vote among full professors for the promotion to full rank decision.

I urge that only in exceptional cases should candidates be considered for early tenure. It is important for you and your faculty to understand that a candidate may be considered for tenure only once. Exceptional cases that might merit early consideration of tenure should be discussed with me before a full dossier is prepared.

A minimum of six external review letters are needed for each dossier. All external letters will be available to the tenured faculty for its deliberations on a case. These six letters will be obtained by departments on behalf of the Executive Dean, based on a list of twelve names of outside referees, half proposed by the candidate and half by the department, compiled independently. See below for more details and deadlines. The Executive Dean reserves the right to solicit additional letters independent of the department. Our expectation is that external reviewers will represent a portfolio of professors active in the discipline and field from comparable peer or more highly regarded institutions. The external referees should be capable of evaluating fairly and objectively junior faculty in light of his or her peers in the discipline or field. Thus, the preponderance of external reviewers should be full professors who can make an arms-length, independent evaluation of the dossier. Generally, dissertation advisors, close personal friends, graduate school peers, or other individuals who might be viewed as having a conflict of interest should not be asked to serve as external reviewers.

Please note that candidates for tenure and promotion now have access to the outside letters and to the entire dossier. Please also note the following excerpt from the UFC policy, Procedures for Faculty Tenure, approved by Board of Trustees, April 23, 1991):

> “The dossier constructed in consultation with the candidate provides the evidence upon which the tenure decision is to be made. If additional information is sought or received during the review of the dossier at any level, the candidate and all previous committees and reviewers must be notified and given the opportunity to respond to the additional information. The information and the responses shall then become part of the dossier.”

Deadlines:

May 4, 2015  External Referees: Forward to your associate dean and to Patti Powell the following materials:

- Candidate’s CV
- Identification of the basis for tenure (research/creative activity, teaching, service, balanced case)
- Names of twelve proposed external referees, half selected by the candidate, half by the Department, and including information on each proposed referee
- Current departmental tenure criteria

Please identify the basis upon which your candidate(s) will be put forward: research/creative activity, teaching, or as a balanced case. Normally, we do not expect this basis to be changed once referee letters are invited as each basis does require a different letter of invitation.

Forward to this office the list of twelve proposed external referees for each candidate being considered for tenure during 2015-16. The candidate should select six individuals to serve as external referees and the department should select six different individuals. The divisional associate dean will then select three names from each of the two lists submitted and at least one alternate from each list. You must indicate clearly those referees suggested by the candidate and those suggested by the department.

For each proposed referee, please provide us with:

- the institutional affiliation, academic rank, and a brief narrative detailing each referee’s qualifications and reputation in the field.
- an embedded link to, or a webpage for, the referee’s CV.
- a brief description of any previous contacts with (e.g. served on a panel together) or relationships between the proposed referee and the candidate (e.g., supervisor, collaborator);

It is the normal expectation of Tenure Committees that most referees will be full professors from peer institutions and will not be closely associated with the candidate. Provide full rationales if the suggested referee is not a full professor, or works in a different field or discipline, serves at a non-research institution, or has had other than a professional acquaintance with the candidate.

May-June 2015  Contact Referees; Mail Materials to Referees; Dossier Preparation

After the proposed referee list is returned with the Dean’s approved referees, contact should be immediately established with the six potential referees by sending them a copy of the candidate’s CV, a copy of the College’s Tenure Criteria, the Department’s tenure criteria, and a letter requesting them to serve as a referee. (Sample letter is attached.) Do not send any dossier materials until the referees have agreed in writing to serve. If any approved referees decline, the approved referee list will indicate alternates whom you can then contact. If you need additional names, please contact your associate dean and Patti Powell with additional proposed names from the department and from the candidate.

Mail packets of materials to external referees who have agreed to supply an assessment. Depending on the nature of the case (research/creative activity, teaching, balanced case), use an appropriate version of sample letter #2 (attached) as a cover letter. You should work with the candidate to prepare six identical packets of materials (articles, books, etc.) for the external referees. Please provide a typed list of the material.

It is the department chair’s responsibility to oversee the compilation of the dossier: this work should not be left to the candidate to do without guidance and clerical support. The Chair is expected to work with the candidate to prepare a dossier that accurately and clearly reflects the candidate’s accomplishments with all the documentation required to meet the university’s procedures and guidelines. Packets should include materials that correspond to the principal criterion (e.g., research/creative activity, teaching, balanced case) that will be used in the department’s assessment of a candidate. Do not forget to include another copy of the College’s Tenure Criteria. It is recommended that the candidate’s personal statement be included in the information sent to external referees.

June 15, 2015

Provide to the College the names of external referees who have agreed to write letters. Please send the list to Patti Powell (ppowell@indiana.edu)

Tenure Dossier due

Tenure dossiers must be submitted via the eDossier system no later than 5:00 p.m. on Monday, September 14. A complete curriculum vitae and bibliography of publications should be provided in all dossiers, with refereed publications clearly identified. Please refer to the Vice Provost for Faculty and Academic Affairs' March 19, 2015 procedures on the Guidelines for Promotion and Tenure in preparing a candidate's dossier.

Special attention often needs to be paid to the teaching portion of the dossier to include and organize student evaluations, peer evaluations, commentary from Ph.D. and M.A. advisees, and from AIs supervised by the candidate which are a major source of information in the teaching category. Summaries of teaching evaluations should be tabulated numerically and a representative set of comments included on a cover sheet for each course. As far as possible, please interpret student evaluation data within your departmental context; e.g., “this introductory course is a challenge for even our most experienced teachers, and this score is close to the departmental norm for this course.”

Just a reminder that the Vice Provost for Faculty and Academic Affairs has instructed departments and deans to use the following evaluative categories to rate teaching performance: Excellent, Very Good, Effective, and Ineffective. For research/creative activity and service, the evaluative categories are: Excellent, Very Good, Satisfactory and Unsatisfactory.

Our procedures call for the chair to provide an evaluation of the candidate’s strengths and weaknesses independent of the department committee, and provide a recommendation on tenure independent of the departmental vote. The chair’s letter should adequately address and interpret the positives and negatives in the dossier, including minority votes and any critical comments contained in external letters, or blemishes in student evaluation. Chairs’ letters are typically 2-3 pages long.

The department chair is required to inform the candidate of the department vote and the chair’s recommendation immediately after the dossier is submitted to the dean’s office. Please note that the VPFAA requires that individual faculty must vote excellent in at least one category for a case going forward on the basis of research/creative activity or teaching, if the overall vote is positive for tenure. Faculty must rank the candidate in each of the three categories, and also vote positive or negative for tenure. The Vice Provost and the Dean expect that there will be correspondence between the individual faculty ranking in each of the three areas, and the vote for tenure. No explanations or comments should be included on ballots. Absences and abstentions do not register as a vote on the ballot which includes both the overall recommendation for tenure and the rankings for research, teaching and service. If a ballot is marked abstain and the three areas are ranked, do not count the rankings.

While the complexity of these procedures and their implementation at the various levels of the University often challenges the expertise of the hardiest bureaucrat, the procedures do help the College and the University assure each candidate a fair and full consideration in a decision of utmost personal and institutional importance. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions regarding the tenure process.
COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES TENURE CRITERIA

All candidates will be evaluated with regard to their performance in the areas of research, teaching and service as stipulated in the Vice Provost for Faculty and Academic Affairs' Academic Guide. It is expected that the candidate should normally excel in at least one of the above categories and be satisfactory in the others. In exceptional cases the candidate may present evidence of a balance of strengths. In all cases, the candidate's total record should be assessed by comprehensive and rigorous peer review. Specifically, the College committee and the Dean use the following criteria in evaluating the relevant categories:

(1) If research or other creative work is the primary criterion for tenure, the candidate must have achieved, or clearly be developing, a position of leadership in a substantial field. This must be demonstrated by evidence of letters, both internal and external, and by other pertinent documentation.

(2) If the primary criterion for tenure is teaching, it should be comparable to that of the most effective teachers at this institution. The faculty member must have demonstrated a superior ability and interest in stimulating in students (at all levels) a genuine desire for study and creative work. Candidates should also provide evidence of a significant educational impact on their particular discipline, both inside and outside of Indiana University. Evidence of outstanding teaching might include indications of the success of students, student evaluations, publication of textbooks or teaching materials, active participation in organizations devoted to teaching, and so forth.

(3) Generally, we do not anticipate that candidates in the College will be put forward for tenure primarily on the basis of their service contributions. However, if there are such exceptional cases, then the documentation should demonstrate the impact of this service on the individual's discipline as well as contributions to this institution.

(4) In a balanced case, the candidate's overall contribution to the university must be shown to be comparable in excellence to that of a candidate with a single primary area. In research, this requires evidence of significant contribution to a substantial field. In teaching, it requires evidence of an important contribution to teaching inside this university and, where possible, outside of it. And in service, it requires evidence of significant impact on the university or one's discipline.

(5) In all cases, the dossier must demonstrate effectiveness in both research and teaching.

(6) It is also expected that all candidates will make a positive contribution to the professional environments of their departments and will make a positive service contribution to the University.

(7) There should be strong indications in the dossier that the candidate will maintain and enhance the level of performance on which the awarding of tenure is to be based.

The College Policy Committee has also clarified the populations within which candidates for tenure are to be evaluated. Evaluations of research, creative activity, and teaching are to be made with respect to individuals who have recently received tenure or who will soon be considered for tenure at major research universities.

The College Policy Committee has formulated a policy for evaluation of classroom teaching stipulating the kinds of information on classroom teaching that must accompany the dossier for tenure or promotion.

Amended 1998
POLICY ON THE EVALUATION OF PEDAGOGICAL PRACTICES

Classroom teaching is central to the educational mission of the University. It is therefore essential that sufficient thought be given to evaluating its effectiveness and to maintaining scholarly rigor. Such evaluation should play a meaningful role in decisions regarding salary, promotion, and tenure. Just as the evaluation of scholarly and creative activity is best made through converging evidence of various kinds from multiple sources, depending on the particular discipline, teaching effectiveness is best evaluated by drawing on multiple sources and kinds of information.

In evaluating teaching performance, a department should use whatever methods of evaluation work best in the particular discipline. It is assumed, however, that a variety of methods will come into play. These methods may include: written course evaluations by students, peer reviews, efforts to update old and develop new courses, evidence of student success, and time and effort devoted to students both outside the classroom and in thesis and dissertation supervision.

Both departmental and College tenure and promotion committees should value each of multiple sources of information about teaching effectiveness in the classroom in arriving at their decisions. A written evaluation of teaching effectiveness should be included in tenure and promotion dossiers.

The College Policy Committee asks that departments include the following information in all tenure and promotion dossiers, and that they draw on similar kinds of information when evaluating performance for the purpose of salary increases:

1. Departments should evaluate the teaching effectiveness of assistant and associate professors based on multiple peer observations of classroom teaching. Ideally, there should be several such observations and written evaluations over several courses and over several years to provide insight into the improvement and maintenance of quality teaching.

2. Teaching dossiers should normally include sample syllabi, assignments, and exams. Tenure and promotion dossiers should also include a written evaluation of this evidence by the Department and its Chair.

3. Student evaluations for all courses should be included in the record. It is recommended that each set of evaluations include some questions requiring discursive responses.

An annual evaluation of teaching should also be incorporated into the departmental process of determining salaries in order to ensure that excellent teaching is recognized and rewarded. Chairs should make clear to the Dean the means by which the department identifies and rewards meritorious teaching, and the Dean, in turn, should insist that teaching play a significant role in the determination of individual salaries.

LETTER #1

Dear:

Professor ____ is being considered for tenure in the Department of ____ at Indiana University. Your name has been suggested as a possible external referee to help us evaluate his/her credentials. On behalf of Indiana University’s Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, I therefore write to ask you to help us make a judicious assessment of Professor ____’s scholarship and of his/her suitability for tenure at Indiana University. I very much hope you will agree to do so.

Indiana University is strongly committed to academic excellence. Thus, we are particularly interested in knowing whether Professor ____ is among the very best of his/her peers. In particular, we want your opinion of the importance of his/her work, its range and depth, and the quality of its presentation. We are also interested in learning whether or not the work appeared in what you consider important or appropriate places, and whether his/her scholarship represents the work of a person who has the potential to achieve a position of leadership in a field of scholarly endeavor. Finally, we ask your opinion whether Professor ____’s work should result in the awarding of tenure in a university of the first rank.

I am enclosing the statement given to all department chairs and to the tenure candidates describing the criteria that the College Tenure Committee and the Dean use in reaching its decision. We are also enclosing a copy of our department’s tenure criteria and Professor ____’s most recent curriculum vitae.

It would be useful for us to know whether and in what ways you are acquainted with the candidate and whether his/her work was known to you previously. Tenure decisions at Indiana University are also based on teaching and on contributions in the area of University, state, national and professional service. If you have any knowledge of the candidate’s abilities and contributions in these areas, your comments would be most welcome.

[Note: The following statement must be included]
Your letter will be seen by faculty members serving in a tenure [and/or promotion] advisory capacity. The candidate may request access to the entire dossier at any time, and the University is legally compelled to comply.

I realize that my request will doubtless be an incursion on your time and generosity, but nonetheless I hope you are able to help us review Professor ____’s credentials for tenure. As you know, a review by outside experts, like yourself, is essential to this process. I thank you for your consideration of this request.

If you agree, we would expect your review by _____________. As soon as we hear from you, we will forward all of Professor ____’s pertinent material. Please do not hesitate to contact me should you have any questions or require additional information.

Sincerely,

[Chair]

According to this university’s Academic Handbook, "Teaching, research and creative work, and services which may be administrative, professional, or public are long-standing University promotion [and tenure] criteria." For your information we are once again enclosing a copy of the tenure criteria established by the College of Arts and Sciences.

In 1994 the University Faculty Council adopted the following addendum to the Handbook:

A candidate for promotion [or tenure] should normally excel in at least one of the above categories [teaching, research and creative work, and service] and be at least satisfactory in the others. In exceptional cases, a candidate may present evidence of balanced strengths that promise excellent overall performance of comparable benefit to the university over time.
